This is Siem Reap, Cambodia. The city is known worldwide for its ancient Buddhist temple complex called Angkor Wat. Tourists come from around the world to see the expansive ancient carved buildings. Seyha is a tour guide and takes tourists to the ancient sites around the city by motorbike. This unique travel adventure allows Seyha to share his faith with his clients while he shows them the ancient buildings. His business has become his ministry!

Seyha has met people of many different faiths and worldviews. He wants to be a witness to people who have never entered a church. His way of giving tours has made him well-known among tour guide companies who hire him. His employers know that he does not drink or work on Sabbath. Seyha's testimony: '01:33 - 02:11

Seyha's integrity takes first place over making money. One day, a man booked Seyha's tour service. The customer knew the other tour guides had charged $25 to rent a room in a particular guest house. But when he asked Seyha how much the room would be, Seyha answered, "$13." Surprised, the man said, "But I've always paid $25 to stay here." Seyha told him that the hotel charged only $13 and it was against his principles to charge him more. "Why?" the man asked. Seyha answered, "Because I follow Jesus, and God wouldn't be pleased if I cheated someone."

Later, the customer sent a message to Seyha saying, "Thank you for showing me what it means to be a true follower of God. I'm reading my Bible now because of your testimony."

Everyone can use their business to meet people and to witness to them. And when that business generates income, still others—far and near— may be reached to God through the tithe and Promise—regular and systematic missionary offerings. When God entrusts man with resources, "it is that he may adorn the doctrine of Christ our Saviour by using his earthly treasure in advancing the kingdom of God in our world." Counsels on Stewardship, 27. As we return our tithe and Promise, may we put our desires last, and God first.
