When the time came to harvest their bountiful crops, Sehee and her family had more than enough to feed themselves. So, they decided to spread the love by sharing their fresh veggies with their neighbors. The joy on people's faces was priceless, and they often reciprocated by gifting Sehee with homemade bread or pickled veggies. That cycle of generosity reminded Sehee that "the more we share, the more we receive."

However, Sehee still longed for friends of her own age, as she was the only child besides her younger brother. So, when the Vacation Bible School was announced, her mother suggested she invite her classmates, and Sehee did just that. She gave out special invitations at school, hoping and praying that her peers would attend.

When no one came, Sehee was disheartened. But Sehee continued to trust in Jesus and prayed for her classmates. After all, her job was only to invite them. God would convince them to attend, she thought.

NARRATION

CN. 05

And then, one day, a boy from her class showed up at church. He didn't know anything about Jesus, but he was eager to learn. Sehee and her brother became friends with the boy, who expressed his love for the church and his desire to come every week.

CN. 06

Sehee was filled with joy and gratitude when her mother reminded her that this boy wouldn't have come to church if she hadn't extended an invitation. She prayed for her new friend and his family, asking Jesus to guide them on their spiritual journey.

CN. 07

Jesus is calling us to invite those around us to accept Him today. But through our tithes and 'Promise' (if distributed as suggested by the Combined Offering Plan), we are able to reach even those who are far from us with news about salvation! While we commit all we have and are to God's mission, let us put our desires last, and God first!
